Joint Strategic Needs Assessment developments

UPDATE: Further progress has been made over the last few months, with some key pieces of work recently being published, improved functionality on the website, and further engagement work with partners. The new documents and data published can be seen on the panel on this page, and we are highlighting the newly published Offender Health Profile later in this newsletter.

NEXT STEPS WITH JSNA BRIEFING SESSIONS: Following the evaluation report of the Briefing Sessions and a discussion with the JSNA Officer Working Group, it has been decided to change the format and style of the sessions. It was generally felt that more time should be given to a topic, and there should be more follow up on the discussions. We have decided to continue with some events, but make them 'workshops' that will inform ongoing work. Details on future planned events will be circulated as appropriate in the future.

NEW OLDER PEOPLES JSNA WEBPAGE: Working with the Norfolk Older People's Forum, we are developing a new webpage linking in to useful information on the health and wellbeing of Older People. Part of the challenge of developing these pages is to make them easier to access for those who may not be as used to using websites for information regularly. This has included adding a scaling tool to the top of the JSNA Home Page allowing the font to be increased for easier reading, and the development of a 'how to get started' document to help new users navigate the system. The new pages will be launched shortly.

OTHER ISSUES: The JSNA Manager has started off a programme of visits to key partners to update them on the JSNA developments and share some of the new information and features of the website. These visits will involve a presentation and discussions with key officers and partners, and are planned to involve visits to all District Councils and the Voluntary Sector, including one to the Older Peoples Forum to launch the new pages.

Tobacco Control: JSNA support pack

Smoking continues to kill nearly 80,000 people in England every year and is the number one cause of preventable death in the country, resulting in more deaths than the next six causes combined. Tobacco use is also a powerful driver of health inequalities and is perhaps the most significant public health challenge we face today.

This pack aims to signpost you to available tools and datasets to support the local authorities and partners, to make the case for local tobacco control interventions.

Homeless Health Matters: the case for change

People who are single homeless experience significant health inequalities; they are more likely than the general population to experience multiple physical and mental health problems.

This report aims to provide the information that relevant commissioners need to understand and address the impact on health of single homelessness.

Offender Health Profile for Norfolk 2014

BACKGROUND: The Public Health Intelligence Team has led (with funding from the Office of Police and Crime Commissioner) on the development of an offender health profile for Norfolk, with the aim of providing a picture of how the services fit together and are developing following and during major structural change in the Criminal Justice System. The report was timed to provide a baseline picture of offender health services and evidence to inform commissioning priorities for 2015/16.

Provision of health services for offenders has always been complicated, with a mix of national and local services developed to ensure the health and wellbeing of those in custody, convicted of crimes and ex-offenders. The aim of this project is to investigate and set out how these services and provisions work in Norfolk, and to make an assessment of their apparent effectiveness and any gaps in the system.

WHERE CAN I VIEW THE REPORT?

A baseline picture of offender health services and evidence to inform commissioning

KEY FINDINGS: The report looked at a wide range of specific groups of offenders, and includes specific findings and recommendations for these groups, including offenders with mental health problems, offenders with learning disabilities / autism and female offenders. However there were some general findings that summarise many of the issues and these include:

- ❖ The system for commissioning health care for offenders is fragmented and contains gaps and duplications.
- ❖ Mental health commissioning is crucial in providing services for offenders but there are currently four statutory bodies commissioning mental health services in a range of setting. The need to work better together and involve / engage each other in making commissioning decisions.
- ❖ For some groups there is limited understanding of needs and limited provision. This includes offenders with learning disabilities, with personality disorders and female offenders.

RECOMMENDATION TO

COMMISSIONERS: There is a need to create an integrated offender health and social care commissioning board who could work together on commissioning for health and wellbeing needs.

This recommendation was accepted and approved by the Norfolk Health and Wellbeing Board in October, and is being progressed.
